

Orthodox Research Institute Publishes Encountering Jesus in the Gospels

ROLLINSFORD, NH (February 12, 2012)—The Orthodox Research Institute is pleased to announce the publication of Encountering Jesus in the Gospels by Fr. William C. Mills. This book provides reflections and “Food for Thought” on the description of Jesus Christ in the Gospels, including the titles that are used to describe Him.

“In this welcome and wonderfully accessible book, Father William Mills very skillfully cuts through the fog of the current Jesus wars and helps readers discover for themselves the richly diverse answers provided in the gospels to Jesus’ own question: ‘Who do you say that I am?’” explains Adam Deville, Assistant Professor of Theology at the University of Saint Francis.

“At first glance, this book is a study of the names and titles of Jesus,” states His Grace Seraphim (Sigrist), retired Bishop of Sendai, “but proves to be far more, as each name proves, in the author’s related experience, to be a point of meeting with the Lord. Surely people will have a deeper intimacy with Christ from this brief, but life touching, book.”

Other books by Fr. Mills published by the Orthodox Research Institute include Our Father, From Pascha to Pentecost, Prepare O Bethlehem, Baptize All Nations, Let Us Attend, A Light to the Gentiles and Feasts of Faith. These books serve as useful resources both for personal reference in conjunction with one’s regular Bible reading and within the context of a parish Bible study.
